

Route Summary

---

The route follows the tarmac surfaced Lune Millennium Park pathway to the Crook O'Lune picnic area, then back to Bull Beck along the bank of the River Lune over reasonable flat grazed pastures (which may be damp at times and are susceptible to flooding after heavy rainfall).

Route Overview

---

Category: Walking

Rating: ★★★★★

Surface: Undefined

Date Published: 13th February 2019

Difficulty: Easy

Length: 5.990 km / 3.74 mi

Last Modified: 2nd September 2020

Description

---

Caton and Brookhouse are situated on the north-facing slope of the Lune Valley. The villages lie in a scenic area near the celebrated Crook O'Lune – painted by Turner, praised by poets Thomas Gray and William Wordsworth. And admired by Queen Victoria.

Caton-with-Littledale Parish contains a wide range of habitats, which are home to a variety of special birds, including the rare hen harrier, the symbol of the Forest of Bowland AONB.

Birds to look out for include:

- The kingfisher. If you are very lucky, you may be able to observe the kingfisher perched, waiting motionless ready to plunge into the water if a small fish swims close.
- Sand Martins. A large colony of these birds use the sandy banks of the River Lune to nest in the summer,
- Oystercatchers, which can be seen guarding their nests to the shingle beaches during summer months.
- Goosanders, which are regular visitors to this part of the river, along with swans and numerous types of ducks and geese.

Waypoints

---

1 SD 541 649

(54.07871; -2.70167)

Park at Bull Beck Picnic site, just north east of Caton on the A683. Cross the A 683 and join the Lune Millennium Park pathway, heading left. The hawthorn hedges beside the track have been traditionally 'laid' to provide a durable stock barrier and an excellent habitat for many birds.

2 SD 538 649

(54.07865; -2.70634)

Follow this path for 1 mile cross a bridge over Artle Beck. Nearby you will see a stone carving by the artist Colin Wilbourn.

3 SD534 648

(54.07784; -2.71371)

Cross a private road (taking the road to the left would take you into the centre of Caton Village) and continue along the Lune Millennium Path parkway towards the Crook O'Lune. Just before the river take a small path down to the left.

An interesting detour here is the Crook O'Lune picnic site. Stay on the track over the old railway bridge and up the ramp to your right. Toilets and refreshments are available and the view from the picnic site is splendid. On clear days, you can see the flat-topped hill of Ingleborough in the distance.

4 SD522 647

(54.07617; -2.73139)

Go through the gate and take the small path down to the river. Cross over a wooden footbridge and follow the path round to your right underneath the old railway bridge, and over a second footbridge. Then follow the river upstream along the riverbank. In summer, rosebay willow herb (the 'railway weed') and the great hair willow herb dominate the old railway banks.

5 SD 532 655

(54.08347; -2.71680)

Cross Artle Beck using the new footbridge, put in to replace the stepping-stones. Do not cross the large Thirlmere Aqueduct Bridge in front of you, but carry on along the riverbank looking up at the windmills on Caton Moor. Continue along the riverbank footpath, round the meander.

6 SD 539 652

(54.08095; -2.70575)

On reaching a track, leave the river, pass a house on the right and turn left, re-joining the Lune Millennium Park pathway. Follow this tarmac path back along to the Bull Beck Picnic site.

